Spot is a chatbot that employees use to answer questions about an incident and create a report

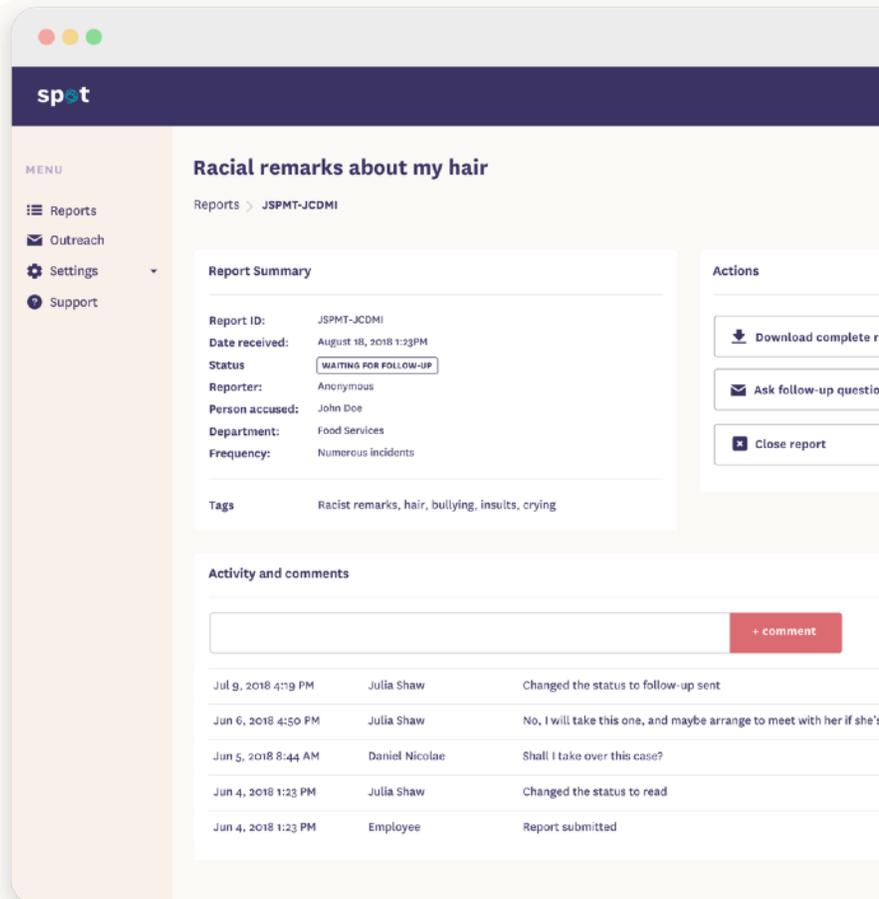

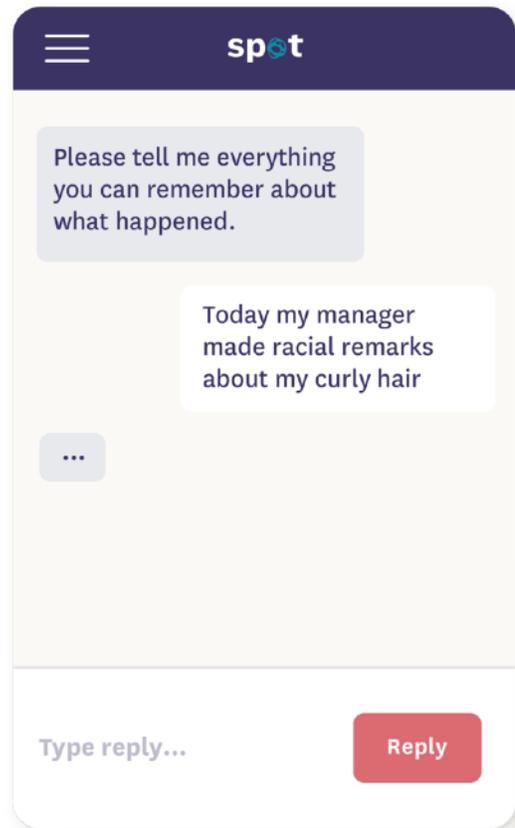

When an incident occurs, employees start a chat with Spot to record details.

From there, employees:

-  Receive a secure, time-stamped report
-  Decide whether to submit report to HR
-  Choose whether to remain anonymous

HR can track and follow up on reports, even anonymous ones

Access all reports in the dashboard. Receive email and Slack notifications about new reports or follow-ups. Export report data as securely signed, time-stamped PDFs.

What's included?

Here's what you'll get with Spot:

24/7 anonymous chatbot

Unlimited reports

Employee verification

Report comments and tracking

Anonymous follow-ups

Export all report data

Two-factor authentication

Educational videos

Proactive reporting system

FAQ

What's the ROI?

Keep your team productive.

Employees who experience harassment or discrimination tend to be less productive due to burnout, depression, anxiety, and stress.

Hire and retain diverse talent.

Inclusive teams have a competitive advantage. If employees report issues early, you're more likely to retain diverse talent and avoid the costs associated with churn.

Where do you store data?

For organizations that use Spot, the most sensitive data—reports submitted to organizations—is stored on servers in the EU only. Other data, such as payment information, is stored on servers outside the EU. We are GDPR compliant. For more details, refer to our Terms of Use and Privacy Policy.

Is Spot an app?

Spot is a web-based app that's optimized for desktop and mobile devices, with a dashboard and management system for admins.

Will I receive more reports?

Many people use Spot to create records for themselves. Sometimes talking through an issue is enough.

Overall, anticipate that reports will increase slightly once you start using Spot. If employees feel secure speaking up about inappropriate behavior, then your efforts with Spot are working. After all, your organization can only address problems that it knows about.
